Product Development Intern

Overall Summary
Overall exposure and tasks related to Product Development and all functional areas of a start-up medical device and allograft tissue company including, but not limited to, marketing, operations, sales and customer service.

This position will have a focus in the laboratory but will also provide some support performing literature searches, writing technical reports, for regulatory documentation as well. We are seeking someone who has had at least basic wet lab experience (e.g. chemistry lab, cell culture, tissue engineering). A person with experience with soft tissue histology, microscopy, ELISA, preparing solutions and/or cell culture experience is a plus as well as some who has had good experience with fine motor manipulation (e.g. building models, working with fine surgical tools etc). Responsibilities will include preparing test samples for R&D studies, assisting with process improvement projects and product characterization studies, perform other related duties as required and assisting with test method development, and maintenance and organization of the Product Development Laboratory.

The Product Development intern will have one specific project to work on during the duration of the internship, as well as working on a variety of projects helpful for the overall day to day responsibilities of the department.

Qualifications:
We are seeking people who are Axogenic!

Teamwork
• Consistently looks for ways to support all team members’ success.
• Put’s the whole team’s/company’s priorities ahead of individual priorities.
• Involves team members appropriately in decision-making and information-sharing.

Passion
• Willing to stand up for his/her beliefs and point of view
• Consistently recognizes and focuses on the importance of the work we do, despite uncertainties and risk.
• Is optimistic and encouraging in words and actions.

Drive to Results
• Consistently anticipates and finds ways to overcome obstacles to achieving the goals
• Holds himself/herself accountable for taking tasks all the way to completion.
• Can clearly communicate important company goals and what he/she needs to do in order to accomplish them.

Customer Focus
• Considers the impact on the customer in every decision.
• Holds himself/herself to high standards of excellence to serve the customer.
• Is seen by the customer as highly responsive in every interaction.
Respect
• Demonstrates consideration for others’ ideas and contributions.
• Engages in passionate debate around issues in a positive and constructive way with appropriate language.
• Communicates truthfully, completely and directly with the person or people involved.

How to apply:
Submit resumes to resumes@axogeninc.com